A Little Cyclone.

Sumter was treated to a little cyclone yesterday afternoon. The wind blew pretty vigorously and with the rain and hail things were truly awful. The steeple of the Episcopal Church was blown down, but this was all the damage done to the Church. Several trees were also blown down and the limbs of others were in every direction. As far as we have been able to ascertain no serious damage has been done in the County by the storm yesterday afternoon.

The Corpse Reviving.

The Poor Devils Divided into the idea that Harrison and Morton will be elected—Talked by Johnston, Bragton, Miller, Murray, Swails, Deas and Heriot.

Runaway.

On last Sunday afternoon while Mr. W. C. Broughton, wife and children were on their way home, their horse became frightened and runaway, upsetting the buggy and running over a stock of clothing belonging to T. B. Jenkins. Fortunately, however, very little damage was done to anyone or anything. Mr. Broughton is under special obligations to Dr. A. J. China and Messrs. D. J. and J. M. Miller for their assistance in this emergency.

The teachers are enthusiastic and take great pride in their work, and every effort will be made to profit by the experience of the past years and to make the Electric College stand even ahead of the very best of female colleges.

New Advertisers.

No business house in Sumter stands higher in the confidence of the entire community, or is better known, than the establishment of B. J. Barnett dealing with its customers than the clothing establishment of D. J. Winn. Its stock of clothing this season is large and complete and will meet the individual taste of every citizen of Sumter County. See new advertisement.

Golden Opportunities.

The name of Brown & Chandler is as familiar as household words in every home in this County. It is known far and wide that they have achieved a great reputation for their stock of clothing and for the fact that the people want and they always buy the very best for the least money possible and sell the same at an exceedingly small profit. Hence Brown & Chandler's clothing is the most popular in this and adjoining counties that is phenomenal. See their advertisement.

The Firm of Brown & Chandler.

The firm of Brown & Chandler is filling a conspicuous place in the commercial history of our city. It confides itself solely to shoes and in this line only does it deal. Consequently the citizens of this County have a guarantee that nothing but the very best in their line can be found in their establishment. It makes no difference whether the article be for this much or that much, it is always the very best for the money. Their stock this season is unusually large and complete. See new advertisement.

When Ireland suffered from famine he had generously subscribed $50,000 for his relief. He denounced the Democrats for failing to keep their promises. The advantage so administered that a poor negro was more severely punished for chicken-stealing than a white man for murder.

He said the Democrats had taken no pains to see that proper men were placed in office as trial justices. He knew nothing about these officers in Sumter County, but in other counties that he did know about anybody was good enough for a trial justice. He said the Democrats had done nothing for the negro in the jury box, in the Legislature, as county commissioners, nor at the offices of registration. Even in counties where they had a majority, they checked the Republican voters, with Democrats the question was not who was best fitted for the office, but who had done the dirtiest work. To obtain the favor of a young lady a young man must go and stuff a ballot box.

The meanness thing the Democrats did was to make the poor colored man pay one dollar for the privilege of voting, under a penalty of ten dollars or thirty days in jail, and then deprive you of your vote. The 7th district had been given to the Republicans, and it was supposed that there would be no contest here, but even that they would not let you have. There is a line beyond which men cannot go. There is a time when endurance ceases to be a virtue. The line is the 7th district, the time is this campaign. Make your stand on the 7th district. Stand together, lock arms, and let every Republican do his duty and victory was assured.

Thos. E. Miller, formerly a State Senator from Beaufort, now a candidate for Congress, was next introduced.

MILLER'S SPEECH.

He said he was proud to come from that glorious county which had given to the country a Pinckney, a Heyward, a Rutledge, a Moultrie, and that great though misguided man, Barwell Rhett. Elliott was to Rhett as an idiot. If the Democrats wanted to put up an able candidate why did they not nominate Moses or Earle. No, they send a pigmy, in braia, to do the work of a giant. As for Elliott, I am willing to meet him, in argument, anywhere. I will let him open the opening and the closing speech; just let me get my little speech in the middle.

What had Cleveland done that he should be considered a great man. His time was occupied principally in frolicking, feasting and retching. Had it not been for free trade the people of Sumter would be prosperous. Look at Greenville with its factories. Look at Troy, New York, with its twenty thousand operatives. He contrasted the varied industries of the North with the one crop, cotton, of the South.

He glanced at Spain, Portugal, Italy, and China, purely agricultural countries, and poor, ignorant and worthless. He defended protection, and said he did not want pauper labor and pauper products.

He said that the News and Courier led Elliott to the sties; but what he had done, except to boast falsely of the support he received from colored voters. Look at his action at the Berkeley Convention, where he allowed the colored voters' rights to be trampled upon without a word of protest. He (Miller) had been called bitter. But he denied the charge. He told only the truth, and if the truth was bitter it was not his fault. He asked Calhoun at the Berkeley Convention if he would not be a traitor to his own people if he would not be a traitor to his own people. He attacked Edwin McCrady as the author of the eight-box law, which would yet plunge the State in a bitter conflict; not a conflict between races, but between the Caucasians themselves. The teachings of Berkeley will be followed in other counties, and will finally sweep the State.

He spoke with absolute confidence of the election of Harrison and Morton, and of his own election. When he got to the Congress, of the United States he would use all his powers and influence to wipe away the iniquitous eight-box law. Elliott could not outdo him in a system which keeps him in office. But he would depend upon the rising generation of white men in South Carolina to aid him in abolishing that disgraceful law. He had been called incendiary, but he only warned the people of the dangers which threatened their liberties. Miller closed his speech with an exhortation to the Republican voters to stand by their principles.

Speeches were also made by Swails, of Williamsburg, Deas, of Darlington, and Heriot, of Georgetown. They consisted of abuse of the Democrats and state jokes.

The meeting which lasted for four hours, was characterized by good order and much enthusiasm. The colored voters were in excellent spirits, and seemed to be impressed with the idea that victory awaited them.

This large and earnest gathering of Republicans should act as an incentive to our Democratic leaders to see that the party in this county and in this district are thoroughly aroused to the necessity of a vigorous campaign. The Republican party may be dead and buried in some portions of the State, but in Sumter County it is a very lively corpse indeed.
